Medical team

- Paramedics and medical personnel will be present throughout the duration of the official days during official training sessions and competition days.

- Medical Room is located on the ground floor of the velodrome.

- Race Doctor Name: Dr. Deus Alexis Angcaya (City Health Office)

- For track cycling velodrome use, emergency medical care outside official training and competition sessions begins with the immediate identification of an incident and ensuring that the track and surrounding area are safe to prevent further injury to the rider or others.
- Velodrome staff, riders, or witnesses should promptly activate local emergency medical services if the injury appears serious, providing the exact velodrome location and a clear description of the incident.

- Basic first aid may be administered within the responder's level of training, including the use of available emergency equipment such as a first-aid kit or an AED, while avoiding unnecessary movement of the injured cyclist unless required for safety. The rider should be kept calm, warm, and under observation, and must not resume riding. Upon the arrival of emergency medical personnel, full care is handed over with a summary of the incident and any assistance provided. The incident should then be documented, and the cyclist may only return to velodrome activity after appropriate medical evaluation and clearance.

Venue evacuation

In the event of a venue evacuation, all individuals must immediately stop their activities and remain calm while listening for official instructions from venue management, security, or emergency authorities. Upon receiving the evacuation order, everyone should proceed quickly but orderly to the nearest clearly marked exit, following posted evacuation routes and staff directions.

Personal belongings should be left behind if they delay evacuation, and running, pushing, or panicking must be avoided to reduce the risk of injury. Staff should assist visitors, athletes, and spectators, giving priority to children, elderly individuals, and persons with disabilities. Elevators must not be used during evacuation; stairs and designated ramps should be used instead.

Once outside, evacuees should move to the designated assembly area and remain there for headcounts and further instructions, ensuring that access routes remain clear for emergency responders. No one should re-enter the venue until it has been declared safe by the appropriate authorities.

Riders 'safety outside the velodrome

Riders 'safety outside the velodrome is the personal responsibility of each participant and must be taken seriously at all times. When riding on public roads, participants are required to comply with all local traffic laws and regulations, including obeying traffic signals, road signs, and instructions from traffic authorities. Riders should always wear approved protective equipment, particularly a properly fitted helmet, and ensure that their bicycles are in safe working condition, with functioning brakes, lights, and reflectors when required.

Cycling should be done defensively, with constant awareness of vehicles, pedestrians, and road conditions, and riders are encouraged to use designated bike lanes where available. Group riding should be conducted in a disciplined manner, avoiding sudden movements, excessive speed, or riding more than two abreast unless permitted by law.

Riders should avoid cycling in poor visibility or hazardous weather conditions and must refrain from using mobile phones or wearing headphones that reduce awareness while riding.

Participants are also advised to carry identification and emergency contact information and to plan routes in advance to minimize risk. Failure to follow these safety instructions may result in disciplinary action and could jeopardize both personal safety and the safety of others.
